

What problems did the people of Japan have after the earthquake? Write your answer below. Underline evidence in the text to support your answer.

The quake had damaged thousands of homes. It also damaged Sendai airport, and ripped pipes and lockers from walls at the Daiichi Nuclear Power Plant in Fukushima. The earthquake had knocked out electricity in many parts of Japan. With millions of people trying to use their phones, phone networks were crashing too.